You can edit the datasource of any bad layer directly and for file based data source you can also use the browse button. You can also select multiple file based datasource and change their path in one go using that button.

hello jürgen, do you mean the window in the screenshot? i don't understand the workflow for "You can also select multiple file based datasource and change their path in one go using that button."

thanks

If you have selected multiple rows with file based datasources and then use the browse button the paths in the datasources will get updated with the selected path (but keeping the filename; think you moved a bunch of files to another directory).
