Weird. After I report this issue, I'm no more able to reproduce it. All goes well.

May be closed and set as invalid unless someone confirms...

I don't know if I have to reopen the issue (otherwise, what is reopening option for?) or create new issue but I reproduce the issue I reported above. I attach two screenshots that show what happens.

However it's not a big issue because once I closed the dialog and reopened it, everything was well sorted.

Happen on an osgeo4w 64bits installed on win7 machine

So does it happen incidentally, or all the time on this computer? If incidentally, are you able to recall that situation? Was it just after first opening the Manager during that QGIS session, or after some installing/deinstalling (something that could change state of some plugins)?

Not all the time, I hadn't remarked this since my previous report. The day I got it, It was :

- the first time I launch QGIS since the computer was ON

- the first time opening the plugin manager

- and I upgraded some plugins.

I can't tell what is related to this bug but I'll watch and report if I can reproduce it.
