Description
I don't know if it's a new feature or a bug ... Worked fine with Pisa. Has this new behaviour with 2.11.0-Master (code revision fefd85a) Open an attribute table. Go for advanced filter, select the field name you want to use for your search. Try to write the few first letters you want to use as the filter : you can only enter the first letter. Example, my field name is "Line_Name", I'm looking for a line with "Henga" in its name. I want to type "Henga", but after the first "H", it switches back to Advance filter with ""TrapLine" ILIKE "%H%" Workaround is to type manually the rest of the name there.

Confirmed in Windows 7, but it's not the "Advanced filter" but the "Column filter". It must be a recent regression, I have been using the column filter a lot in master and never noticed it before.

I can confirm this behaviour.

There is already a bug report on "column filter" turning into "extended filter". This issue has just made it worse.
