QGIS Application - Bug report #21459

DB manager does not confirm anymore that the creation of a PostGIS table went ok

2019-03-03 08:38 PM - Giovanni Manghi

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Status: | Feedback | | | |
| Priority: | Normal | | | |
| Assignee: | | | | |
| Category: | DB Manager | | | |
| Affected QGIS version: | 3.4.5 | Regression?: | Yes | |
| Operating System: | | Easy fix?: | No | |
| Pull Request or Patch supplied: | | Resolution: | | |
| Crashes QGIS or corrupts data: | | Copied to github as #: | 29276 | |

Description

Now in 3.4.5 when finalizing the creation of a PostGIS table nothing happens (in 2.18 a message like "all went ok" was returned) leaving the user wonder if the table was created or else. Not a bad bug (but a regression) and overall a bad UX.

History

#1 - 2019-04-09 11:25 AM - Anita Graser

Looks ok in 3.6 at least

#2 - 2019-04-10 05:17 PM - Giovanni Manghi

- Status changed from Open to Feedback

Anita Graser wrote:

> Looks ok in 3.6 at least

thanks Anita, I put this ticket in feedback as a reminder for me to check also on my box. Cheers!