from what input layer this column must be taken? input line layer? input point layer (from)? input point layer (to)?

also I see that we are using the name "flayer" and "tlayer" for this from/to inputs, names that are not in the manual page for v.net.distance, are they legacy names that are still supported in recent grass releases?

About "flayer" and "tlayer": sorry, I'm an end user and I do not know how to answer it.

About "from what input layer this column must be taken" input line layer "input point layer (from)" input point layer (to) ": input layer FROM.

Rationale: It is better to use input layer FROM to maintain the standard used in the GUI of the tools v.net.alloc, allpairs, iso, path.
