Description

This is a proposal for an enhancement to the delimited text plugin to allow it to use a geometry column formatted as well known text, as an alternative to using x and y columns to define point features.

The attached patch implements this option.

The main limitation in this implementation is that all the geometries must be of the same well known text type.

I've found that this doesn't work when the WKT contains Z, M, or ZM types (eg LINESTRING Z(...). I'll provide a revised patch which handles this soon...

#2 - 2010-11-28 12:00 PM - Chris Crook

New version of patch added .. this version handles .. Z, .. M, and .. ZM type geometries by removing the Z, M, ZM, and removing extra coordinates from the WKT string before passing it to the [[QgsGeometry]] factory function.

Can you provide a couple of small test files with WKT coordinates?

- Resolution deleted (fixed)

Discovered I introduced a bug in the selection of non-point objects (ie wkt objects). Currently selection testing is based on bound box of object only. Needs to include testing actual geometry of object.

Attached patch fixes this
