Description

Immutable is an edit type right now.

I think it would be better to have this as an option for each edit type.

Therefore we could have a frozen combobox or calendar or whatever.

What would you gain by having this?

If you don't want the end-user to modify the entry but still see what it corresponds to.

It would be very useful for value-relation, and for checkboxes.

If you have a view with a calculated status (true/false), you want to display it as a checkbox but don't want the user to change it.

I think it would not require that much of changes, but would be great !
